Navigation Plans

As you read in this newspaper Monday it is possible the first stage of construction for a navigable channel on Red River will begin early next year.

The Associated Press dispatch from New Orleans reported Congress has authorized much of the $900 million total project but hasn't found funds for most of it. A joint House-Senate committee, however, has come up with an agreed $1.2 million appropriation for the first stage. This still requires final approval and signing.

The present authorization for Red navigation runs from the Mississippi River to Shreveport, a distance of 210 miles; and an additional 94 miles on a spur channel from Shreveport through Mile Bayou and Cypress Bayou to Daingerfield, Texas. This is off the main channel of Red River, but the presence of Lone Star Steel's plant in the Daingerfield area helps make the spur feasible because of the expected barge business.

First construction, the dispatch indicated, probably will be on locks to bring navigation north from the confluence of the Black and Red Rivers to the Alexandria-Pineville area.

As plans are laid for the approach to Shreveport what Hope has to be on guard against is the quaint notion of Texarkana Chamber of Commerce that the present Red River channel through Fulton should be abandoned in favor of an entirely new channel running from the Daingerfield spur to the Denison Dam, all in Texas. Texarkana has been lobbying for this for many years, arguing that it would cut out a big bend in the river and reduce the distance to Denison by 60 to 70 miles. As you might have guessed, the Daingerfield-Denison channel proposal would put barge traffic at Texarkana's back door—while the present river route through Fulton is 20 miles away.

I first heard of this river-grabbing idea at a Shreveport meeting of Red River Valley Association, of which The Star is a long-time member. On questioning L. R. Matthias, then the executive director of the association, now deceased, I was assured the association would never endorse Texarkana's idea. I got the same report from our Arkansas delegation in the Congress.

In reporting these facts in this column several years ago I suggested Texarkana ought to quit begging for a free waterway and do what Houston did—borrow the money and dig its own ship channel.

That didn't sit well with Texarkans—neither does it sit well with Hempstead counties and our neighboring county folk to be threatened with the loss of Fulton as a river port, once the head of navigation for stern-wheelers plying Red River.

I don't believe the threat is real—but it's worth remembering as the navigation project starts upstream.

In the last analysis, if Arkansas were threatened with the loss of Red River it is highly likely the Arkansas delegation in Congress would cut off all navigation funds. Knowing that, Louisiana isn't going to temporize with Texarkana's river-grabbing plan any more than Arkansans will.

Last day of an oil well

The Laneburg community in Nevada County had a brief glimpse of the workings of the oil drilling business during the last week as a wildcat well was erected on the property of Mrs. Oma Sampson. However, the operation closed down after only eight days of drilling. The well, sunk by Bud White of El Dorado and Garland Anthony of Bearden, struck oil pockets several times, Mrs. Sampson said, but was finally declared a "tight hole."

Peaceful protestors meet at Miami Beach

MIAMI BEACH, Fla. (AP) — As Republicans convened inside, some 3,500 peaceful protesters gathered in the rain in front of Convention Hall to listen to Jane Fonda, Bobby Seale, an all-women rock band and 20 marching kazooes.

Delegates and Nixonettes — young women clad in red-white-blue uniforms — passed easily through the crowd Monday night, a stark contrast to the jostling some of them received from demonstrators at a Republican gala the night before.

A gentle rain fell throughout the evening, driving many of the protesters back early to their nearby Flamingo Park campsite despite pleas from organizers for "revolutionary patience and perseverance."

Miss Fonda spoke against U. S. actions in the Vietnam war. The actress urged people to vote in November "even if you don't believe in the electoral system."

Seale, chairman of the Black Panthers, branded the Nixon administration "fascist and racist" and called for the varied protest groups to unite in a "righteous, humane revolution."

Knots of protesters gathered at the fence surrounding the hall, talking of politics, the war and football with the riot-ready police arrayed behind it.

Departing demonstrators later threw a few eggs and firecrackers at police, tore bunting from the light poles of the hall and burned three of the Miami Beach welcome signs attached to the poles.

Protest organizers said the general tranquility of the evening will not prevail during the demonstrations planned for the remaining two days of the convention. Police agree.

Police Chief Rocky Pomerance said he would be putting more of his forces on the street from now on in recognition of the increased militancy expected from the protesters.

Although the street scene was generally quiet, police were called twice early in the evening to separate 1,500 militantly anti-Communist Cubans from the anti-Nixon protesters.

Eight persons were arrested Monday afternoon when about 1,000 members of the Vietnam Veterans Against the War marched on a high school near the hall where 1,000 National Guard troops are billeted during the convention.

Seven persons who refused to leave the high school roof ran into a platoon of guardsmen. The troops detained them until police arrived to arrest them for nonforcible entry.

The only other altercation of the day occurred in the protesters' Flamingo Park campground when Abbie Hoffman, a leader of the Yippie faction of the Youth International Party, came to blows with A. J. Weberman, a leader of the party's Zippie faction.

Nixon is bound for Miami

WASHINGTON (AP) — President Nixon, bound for the Republican convention in the role of conquering hero, will get a televised welcome today afternoon at Miami International Airport.

The White House officially announced Nixon's travel plans just 2½ hours before his scheduled departure for Florida.

Although folks in Miami apparently knew about the President's intentions a day ago, the White House apparently tried to make an overnight secret of them lest protesters be inspired to turn out at the airport.

Press secretary Ronald L. Ziegler said the chief executive would be met at the airport at 4 p.m., EDT, by Mrs. Nixon and their two daughters, Julie Eisenhower and Tricia Cox.

Nixon then will fly by helicopter directly to his home in Key Biscayne, planning to remain there until he goes to Convention Hall in Miami Beach Wednesday night to accept the GOP nomination.

Cheering squad:
YEAH! for Nixon

MIAMI BEACH, Fla. (AP) — Republicans have spiced their convention with a goggle-eyed young cheering squad which marches to the GOP beat as avidly as protesters on the outside march against it.

On cue from party organizers, the young volunteers clap and cheer at the convention hall.

The organizers, in turn, provide them a swimming pool, tennis court, rock bands and games to pass away the hours until their next assignment.

Their cheering, foot-stomping and banner-waving through the evening session Monday livened up the proceedings and frequently delayed them.

Several of the speakers, including Pat Nixon, took note of the young people's presence with waves, smiles and "thank you's."

Their activities are managed by seven main organizers equipped with walkie-talkies for "more efficient manpower movement," said one of them, 24-year-old Tom Bell.

Some 3,000 strong, the GOP youths paid their own way to Miami Beach to cheer on President Nixon and in the process, experience a smidgen of national politics.

The Nixon volunteers contrast sharply with the youthful delegation drawn here by the convention to protest Nixon administration policies, particularly on the Indochina war.

The "young voters for the President" stay in hotels. Their opposite numbers camp in Flamingo Park.

The Nixon group is bused daily to what they call the "holding area" at Nautilus Junior High School. There they wait until they are assigned to a team being dispatched to the convention hall or Republican functions elsewhere in the area.

There are four rock bands taking turns at entertaining the young people while they paint signs welcoming Nixon to Florida. One band leader complains that the manpower managers keep interrupting the music to make announcements and once even pulled the plug on their equipment.

But Nixon, who has insisted for about a year that he could not discuss politics publicly because his only aim was to do his presidential job, will waste little time after that in joining the fray.

Compromise possible

Floor fight

MIAMI BEACH, Fla. (AP) — Big-state Republicans appeared ready today to accept defeat in a fight over the allocation of future GOP convention delegates rather than take a lost cause to the convention floor.

Although some of the angrier moderates — whose efforts to reach a compromise with supporters of a plan favoring small, conservative states failed Monday night — still talked of a showdown at Convention Hall, no concerted campaign had been mounted a few hours before the convention was scheduled to act.

Some leaders of big-state delegations also still held out hope of a final compromise on the party-splitting issue, but the Southern-led forces supporting the small-state plan have won three pre-convention fights in a row and show no indication of yielding any ground.

The conservative-dominated Rules Committee gave its plan its biggest boost Monday night when it rejected a final compromise effort backed by national GOP Chairman Robert Dole and then shouted approval of one that would maintain a voting advantage in the 1976 convention for smaller, safely Republican states.

Sen. Charles Percy, R-Ill., a leader of the fight to increase the convention influence of the urban, industrial states, accused the committee of "railroading" its plan through without giving the opposition sufficient time to debate alternatives.

The sectional split in the Republican party that the delegate allocation fight has opened was bared in the debate over the Dole-backed compromise, which would have rewarded states with bonus delegates if they elected a Republican governor or senator.

The conservatives' plan would pay off only if a state delivers its electoral vote for the Republican presidential candidate.

As approved by the Rules Committee, the plan starts with a base of two delegates for each of a state's electoral votes. In addition, any state going for President Nixon this fall would get 4½ bonus delegates. The state then gets more bonuses equal to 60 per cent of its electoral vote — that is, a state with 10 electoral votes going for Nixon would get 4½, plus 6, totaling 10½ delegates and rounding out to 11 delegates.

The California amendment, pushed through Monday night to head off a more liberal compromise offer from Kansas, would reward states for electing other Republican office holders, but on an equal basis without regard to the size of the state. Each state would get one extra delegate for electing a GOP governor, one for each Republican senator and one for a majority of its congressional delegation.

Mrs. Nixon
protestors

MIAMI BEACH, Fla. (AP) — Two young female protesters slipped into a Fontainebleau Hotel brunch and one shouted insults at Pat Nixon today while another 150 protesters and 100 young supporters of the President traded taunts outside the hotel.

The girls, Fran Cohn, 19, Buffalo, N.Y., and Marsha Monestersky, 20, Boston, somehow eluded scores of police and security officers and ran briefly into the ballroom where Miss Monestersky shouted, "Miss Pig" at the First Lady and guests at the brunch held by Mrs. Nixon.

Officers grabbed Miss Monestersky, questioned her briefly and then released her outside the hotel where the two women were hailed as conquering heroes by the picketing protesters.

The demonstrators showed up shortly after Tricia Nixon Cox arrived to attend her mother's brunch and was cheered into the hotel by the Young Voters.

Disabled Vietnam vets leading demonstrators at Miami

MIAMI BEACH, Fla. (AP) — Up front as the demonstrators marched past Convention Hall were the disabled veterans whose wheelchairs and limping gaits provided mute evidence of their knowledge of the Vietnam war.

It was Monday afternoon and the Republican National Convention was in its opening session.

"One, two, three, four! We don't want your racist war!" they chanted. And one of the limping leaders, John Musgrave, raised his right arm in a clenched fist salute as he shouted the antiwar slogan over and over again.

Then he turned his head and grinned.

"If someone had said to me in 1967, at Khe Sanh, that five years later I'd be marching and shouting these things, I guess I'd have shot myself."

The 24-year-old ex-Marine from Baldwin City, Kan., is one of nearly 1,000 members of Vietnam Veterans Against the War who came here to join in antiwar demonstrations during the GOP convention.

Marching beside Musgrave was another limping ex-Marine, Lynn Witt, 23, of Champaign, Ill., his right leg, shattered at Khe Sanh, held together by a steel brace.

This march was directed not at the delegates, out of hearing range inside the convention hall, but at the 1,000 Florida

National Guardsmen camped inside Miami Beach High School, just north of the convention complex.

It was the veterans' idea to try to talk to the guardsmen. And when they marched out of their encampment at Flamingo Park other young people joined them. There were about 1,000 marchers when they reached the high school.

It was a hot day and the pace was slow; men like Musgrave and Witt no longer walk fast.

The guardsmen stayed inside, the windows shut and the blinds drawn. But Musgrave spotted two guardsmen by a partially opened, second-floor window at a far end of the building.

"I went into the Marines when I was 17 years old," he shouted to them. "And I just want you guys to understand we're not against you. We're all in the same bag. We're all being used in the same way."

After more than an hour of antiwar speeches on the high school grounds, the veterans joined other groups in a mass rally in front of the hall.

But Witt and Musgrave didn't stay long. They hurt.

"We kind of crawled back," Witt said later. "Like it took us about an hour to get back."

It had been one of the longest and hardest of several long, hard days the two veterans had been through since they drove into Miami Beach last Thursday.

They hadn't been there a day, when someone broke into their van and stole all their clothes.

There had been a scuffle Sunday with 20 members of the National Socialist White Party who had entered Flamingo Park. Then Sunday night, the veterans moved their tents out of a section of the park they had shared with several less serious protest groups such as the Zippies and Pot Party.

"We consider that area a circus," said Witt.

Musgrave is a member of the vet contingent in the park security force. At 11:30 a.m., he was trying to organize patrols to deal with a rumored return of the American Nazi Party members.

Finally, word came from Miami Beach police that the Nazis were in Miami across Biscayne Bay from Flamingo Park.

It was noon and an hour later there was another meeting, this time of just veterans.

Had the day been worth the pain?

"Just being up there with the disabled vets," said Witt "and when we turned around and saw everybody back there. It was a feeling we hadn't had as VVAW people since Washington."

"I don't think we're getting through to any of the delegates," said Musgrave.

Jump recorded in living cost

WASHINGTON (AP) — The cost of living rose four-tenths of one per cent last month, faster than any month since February, the Labor Department said today.

At the same time the department reported that the average weekly earnings of rank-and-file production workers rose eight-tenths of one per cent, twice the increase in consumer prices.

This left an increase of four-tenths of one per cent in buying power for July, the highest rise since the department began keeping figures on real earnings in 1964.

A big increase in consumer prices was due mainly to a sharp jump in the cost of food. This went up a full one per cent in terms of the housewife's dollars, which the department said was six-tenths of one per cent more than usual for July.

There was no increase in the average price of commodities other than food. These prices usually drop this time of year, due to summer sales and other factors, so nonfood goods showed a three-tenths of one per cent increase on a seasonally adjusted basis.

The four-tenths of one per cent increase in the Bureau of Labor Statistics' Consumer Price Index put the indicator at 125.5 for July. This means it costs $12.55 to buy a cross-section of goods and services that cost $10.00 in 1967.

South Vietnam offers release of 600 POWs

SAIGON (AP) — The South Vietnamese government offered today to return 600 disabled North Vietnamese prisoners of war unconditionally. It also announced amnesty for 496 South Vietnamese convicts.

The Foreign Ministry called on Hanoi to propose arrangements for receiving the POWs.

The Foreign Ministry said the clemency was being made on the occasion of Vu Lan, the Buddhist All Soul's Day Festival, which begins Wednesday.

Jets wreck bridges

SAIGON (AP) — U.S. Navy jets ranged along North Vietnam's coast from Vinh to Haiphong Monday, wrecking bridges, supply depots and army barracks, the U.S. Command reported. But overcast skies inland cut the total number of U.S. strikes to about 150, less than half the number flown on recent big days.

The Navy pilots said they knocked out 10 bridges and in one raid destroyed 100 stacks of war material eight miles northeast of Vinh.

A6 Intruders from the carrier Kitty Hawk soared in on the Son Duong supply depot northeast of Haiphong, and the pilots said they left the installation in flames and exploding. Other Kitty Hawk pilots reported two big explosions after a raid on the Tho Vuc army barracks 50 miles southwest of Thanh Hoa.

Meanwhile, in South Vietnam, the North Vietnamese kept up their heavy artillery bombardment in and around Quang Tri, shot down a U.S. F4 Phantom over the city, hit another one and made several rocket and mortar attacks in the Saigon region.

Another U.S. Air Force Phantom at Quang Tri accidentally dropped 500-pound bombs on government marines a mile and a half north of the city Monday night, the U.S. Command said. It reported that one marine was killed and 13 were wounded.

"The incident is under investigation," the Command said.

McGovern is visiting LBJ

JOHNSON CITY, Tex. (AP) — Sen. George McGovern met today with former President Lyndon B. Johnson to discuss campaign strategy and ways to unify the Democratic party for the November election.

McGovern and his vice-presidential running mate, Sargent Shriver, flew by helicopter to the LBJ Ranch from Austin, where late Monday night they had a rousing airport welcome from some 10,000 persons.

McGovern used the occasion to heap lavish praise on Johnson, whose Vietnam policies gave McGovern the issue that carried him to the Democratic presidential nomination.

Despite that, however, there were strong indications that a cooler than expected welcome awaited the Democratic ticket here in the Texas Hill Country.

In a move that clearly disappointed some top McGovern aides, newsmen, photographers and even McGovern staffers were barred from the meeting, assuring it would be held without the fanfare that could help drive home the message of unity.

McGovern and Shriver scheduled an afternoon news conference in Austin to report on the meeting, which was to be recorded only by official photographers.

Moments before helicoptering from Austin to the ranch, McGovern said the orders banning the news media from the ranch came from Johnson and were agreed to "out of respect to his privacy."

"President Johnson has been out of active politics for a long time, McGovern said, adding: "His health difficulties are well known."

There was some confusion, especially among McGovern's staff people, about why newsmen were barred.

But McGovern sought to dampen any speculation about the continued coolness between the two, praising Johnson lavishly at an airport rally attended by 8,000 to 10,000 people.

"No man in the history of this country has ever done more to advance the education of the children of this country," declared McGovern, flanked on a runway speaking stand by Shriver and several members of this state's congressional delegation.

"Everyone knows we had differences," said McGovern. But, he went on, although Johnson and he did not agree on the war and on foreign policy "there is still a place for diversity in this country."

McGovern's staff, clearly disappointed by the development during a day of campaigning through Northeastern Pennsylvania and Illinois, also put out a statement shortly before the chartered campaign jet touched down at Austin's municipal airport.

Despite the earlier confusion and disappointment, the statement said the decision to bar newsmen and photographers was a staff decision made "in deference to President Johnson's privacy."

The statement added, however, that the decision could be changed only if Johnson invited newsmen and "he has not."

Although Johnson put out a statement last week saying he supported McGovern but reserved the right to disagree with him, the South Dakota senator sought a face to face meeting as a more dramatic demonstration of national party unity.

That Johnson statement was the former president's first comment since the McGovern-dominated national convention last month.

KKK attempting to 'marry' AIP

INDIANAPOLIS (AP) — The American party's national campaign director contends the Ku Klux Klan is trying to "marry" the party.

The Klan's Indiana grand dragon in turn says the John Birch Society is trying to dominate the American party, "especially in Indiana."

This exchange came about Monday when James M. Toevs, campaign director for the American party national ticket of John Schmitz and Tom Anderson, called a news conference to "clarify" the Indiana situation.

Both the Indiana American Independent Party and the American Party of Indiana are circulating petitions to get Schmitz and Anderson on the state ballot in November.

Toevs said the IAIIP was the "authentic" Indiana representative of the national American party.

He also told a news conference that uninvited Klansmen had been trying to dominate some American party gatherings in the South.

"There appears to be a calculated attempt by the Klan to publicly marry the American party ... I have no sympathy with the Klan whatsoever and the leaders of the American party have little in common with the Klan," Toevs said.

William M. Chaney, Indiana grand dragon of the Klan, issued a statement saying the Klan has "many people in the American party and several in the American Independent party, and the Klan in the last 10 years has said 'George Wallace' more times than any organization in America."

oners in nearly two years, Sgt. John C. Sexton Jr., 23, of Warren, Mich. The Viet Cong indicated they would welcome reciprocity, and three days later the United States and South Vietnam freed a North Vietnamese prisoner. But that was the last prisoner exchange.

If carried out, the POW release proposed today would be the biggest of the war involving North Vietnamese troops.

A similar proposal in June 1971 ended in failure, recriminations, and embarrassment in Saigon and Washington.

The Saigon government announced the release of 570 sick or wounded prisoners but could produce only 13 who said they wanted to return to the North. The 13 were to be transferred from a U.S. naval vessel at sea, but the ship never entered the agreed-on cease-fire zone because the North Vietnamese termed the plan a hoax and rejected it.

Last Nov. 1, to mark the inauguration of President Nguyen Van Thieu for a second term, the South Vietnamese government released 618 Viet Cong natives of South Vietnam and granted amnesty to another 2,320.

The South Vietnamese hold about 35,000 prisoners of war, a little more than 8,000 of them North Vietnamese. The U.S. Command lists 1,651 Americans as missing or captured in Indochina.

Emergency declared in Chile

SANTIAGO, Chile (AP) — President Salvador Allende declared a state of emergency in Santiago Province Monday night in an attempt to quell mounting protests against food shortages brought on by his socialist policies.

Most of Chile's 150,000 shopkeepers closed in a one-day protest strike Monday, housewives in Santiago staged another pot-banging demonstration, riot squads clashed with anti-Marxist demonstrators and anti-leftist youths put up flaming barricades along 10 blocks of Santiago's swank Providencia Avenue.

Mrs. Brown, who became editor of Cosmopolitan in 1965, was cited for "solid reporting, daring departure from tradition and fearlessness in voicing opinions on the young, modern woman."

MINNEAPOLIS, Minn. (AP) — Comedian Bob Hope has been awarded the Dwight David Eisenhower Distinguished Service Medal by the Veterans of Foreign Wars.

The VFW presented Hope the medal Monday night "in recognition of his significant contribution to the cause of American unity and strength."

Hope told 2,500 persons attending the VFW national convention here that he has been entertaining U.S. troops since 1941 and "feels great knowing these guys are guardians of our nation's heritage."

VFW national Commander Joseph L. Vicites also presented Hope a check for $1,000 from the organization to give to the charity of his choice. Hope said the money would go to the Eisenhower Medical Center in Miami.

People in the News

JERUSALEM (AP) — Rabbi Meir Kahane says his militant Jewish Defense League will kidnap Soviet diplomats in the United States if the Soviet Union does not stop imposing special fees on emigrating Jews.

Kahane told a news conference Monday that he wrote Secretary of State William P. Rogers and urged him to take "quiet and energetic steps" against the Soviet practice.

A State Department spokesman in Washington said no such letter had been received.

The Soviet government has been levying exit fees on individuals with specialized training who wish to emigrate to Israel as payment for their educations.

NEW YORK (AP) — Helen Gurley Brown and Cosmopolitan magazine will receive the 1972 award of the American Society of Journalism School Administrators.

The award, announced Monday, will be presented next Tuesday at the administrators' convention in Carbondale, Ill.

Applications for adoptions being accepted

Marie Jackson, area adoption worker, will be in the Hempstead County Social Services office to take applications and further explain recent changes in adoption procedures by the agency.

Arkansas Social Services Commissioner Dalton Jennings recently called for a maximum effort to be made in finding a permanent home for hard-to-place children with problems and for further efforts to be made in the black community.

The temporary changes call for the adoption staff to make a concerted effort in these areas for the next six months; applications for these type children will receive preferential treatment. The agency will defer processing applications for normal white infants until maximum effort has been made for other children to be placed.

Applications will still be taken for white infants; however, these adoption studies will be temporarily deferred because the Agency is experiencing an ever increasing backlog of this type of application. Presently the agency has 150 couples approved for placement with approximately 90 per cent of those requesting normal white infants and young children. Couples requesting hard-to-place children, including black children, will receive priority in the handling of their applications. The agency has many black children ranging from infancy to age 12 who are in foster-home care. In the past six months, the agency has had few approved homes to consider for the placement of hard-to-place children.

There is a new agency plan that calls for continued financial responsibility for a child's medical problems which existed at the time of the child's placement.

Anyone who is interested in adopting a child should contact the Social Services Office at 777-2675.

Team chicken with sauerkraut

CHICKEN WITH TOMATO KRAUT — The chicken is fried first and then arranged on a bed of tomato-flavored kraut before it goes into the oven for a brief stay.

By Cecily Brownstone
Associated Press Food Editor

DEAR CECILY: I tried your chicken and sauerkraut recipe and liked it so much I'd be grateful if you would give another recipe for this combination. I had never thought of putting the two ingredients together, but now I think they're especially tasty. — CURIOUS COOK.

DEAR CURIOUS COOK: Yes, it is a little surprising that kraut and chicken are such good companions. I think you'll like the following recipe because the kraut is deliciously savory. — C.B.

CHICKEN WITH TOMATO KRAUT
1/4 cup butter
3 pounds broiler-fryer chicken

pieces
Salt and pepper
2 medium onions, but in thin strips
1 large clove garlic, minced
3 large carrots, grated medium-fine (2 cups lightly packed)
1 can (1 pound and 11 ounces) sauerkraut, drained
3 tablespoons light brown sugar
1/2 cup dry red wine
1 can (15 ounces) tomato sauce
1/2 teaspoon dried crushed oregano
1/4 teaspoon dried crushed thyme
1/4 cup minced parsley
Parsley sprigs

In a large skillet melt the butter; add chicken and brown slowly and thoroughly on all sides so that parts are almost cooked through. Remove chicken; sprinkle lightly with salt and pepper and set aside. To drippings in skillet add onion, garlic and carrots; cook gently, stirring often, until tender. Add remaining ingredients except chicken; mix well; simmer until moisture evaporates — about 3 minutes. Season to taste with salt and pepper.

Into a 3-quart oblong glass baking dish (13 1/2 by 8 3/4 by 1 3/4 inches) or similar utensil turn the kraut mixture; top with chicken. Bake in a preheated 400-degree oven until chicken is tender — about 20 minutes.

Makes 6 servings.
Note: A 3-pound frying chicken, cut up, may be used in place of the 3 pounds broiler-fryer pieces. In either case have drumsticks separated from thighs.

Dangers of Dating Ahead

DEAR RAP: When a guy treats you like his kid sister, you really work to make him fall. I thought I was really in love with Gar so I asked him to our homecoming dance this November. I was real surprised when he said "Okay."

It's the biggest dance of the year outside of the senior prom and I wouldn't feel right unless I went with someone I truly loved.

Well, now I've discovered I only "like" Gar—well enough to be friends but not like I LOVE Tony, who came into my life two weeks ago.

Last night Tony asked me to the homecoming ball. He's the one I want to go with so I didn't tell him about my date with Gar. Instead I put him off with "Let's wait a month and see if we still feel like this about each other." I should have been truthful, 'cuz now I'm in a mess. Whichever boy I go with the other will be mad. I don't want to hurt Gar (whom I've known for five years) but if I lose Tony, I'll DIE.

Should I tell them both I've sworn off dancing or something?—THREE MONTHS TILL HOME COMING DEAR TMTH:

If you're just a "kid sister" to Gar, don't you suppose he'll understand? A Homecoming Dance is very special and a girl should share it with the guy in her life, not the former guy in her life.

Wait a month and see which is which.—SUE
DEAR TMTH: And don't be surprised if it's neither!

The moral of your letter is: girl with changeable heart should not plan three and one-half months ahead.—HELEN DEAR HELEN AND SUE: My mother had this wild crush on Tom Jones and when my grandmother teased her about it she laughed and said, "Remember how you mooned over Libera—and he was 15 years younger than you!"

Anyway, I thought it was ridiculous, going crackers over TV stars. And then, Donny Osmond came along, and I guess it runs in families. My father calls me wacky. My brother-in-law asks "Who's that good looking girl?" when he sees Donny's picture on my bulletin board. My mother says

I'm "MOONY," AND I don't dare remind her of Tom Jones. My sister sympathizes but she says I'll never get to meet him so why bother? No one seems to realize I'm in love and you can't turn that off just by being practical. Besides I'm not lonely when I'm thinking of HIM.

I write his name all over my books and I've even carved it in a tree, along with mine. I'm jealous when I see him smiling at someone else (on TV). When other boys are stupid and childish, I pretend I'm talking to Donny and he understands and always says the right thing.

Am I crazy? If there's no hope (is there, just a little?) then will I ever get over it?—DONNY FOREVER

No, you're not crazy and, yes, you'll get over this crush. But meanwhile, it's helping you through what may be a rough time in your life. When a girl is vaguely lonely and not quite ready for real boys, it's comforting to have a "hero" who always says the right things, never makes her feel awkward or dumb, and will be "Donny on the spot," whenever her imagination calls him.

The world would be a sad place for young teenagers (and older people, too) if they could never daydream.

When will you outgrow Donny?—When a real Johnny, Pete, Dick, Tommy comes along. You'll see.—HELEN AND SUE

(GOT A PROBLEM? Or a subject for discussion, two-generation style? Direct your questions to either Sue or Helen Bottle—or both, in care of this newspaper, if you want a combination mother-daughter answer.)

Safety plays are usually a matter of declarer taking a little extra care to insure his contract.

They are essential in rubber bridge and there are many occasions when they should be made in match point duplicate.

Today's hand shows South in a very good five-club contract.

In a duplicate game most pairs would be playing at a club part score. Therefore, in either duplicate or rubber bridge South wants to give himself the best play for his contract.

This play is to lead the queen of clubs at trick two and then refuse the club finesse. Now his contract is safe against any 2-1 trump break.

He ruffs dummy's last heart and plays out all the diamonds. Then he leads a club and it doesn't matter which opponent wins.

He must either give South a ruff and discard or lead a spade. In all cases the guess for the spade jack is eliminated.

Suppose West started with all three clubs? Then South will wish that he had taken the club finesse but he will still have a fifty-fifty chance for his contract. He will lead a second trump and eventually try to locate the spade jack.

Curve ball causes trouble for Carlton

By BRUCE LOWITT
Associated Press Sports Writer

Owners charge Riva Ridge was drugged

SARATOGA SPRINGS, N.Y. (AP) — The FBI is investigating charges by the owner of Riva Ridge, considered by many to be the best 3-year-old race horse in the country, that the colt was drugged when he finished fourth in the $100,000 Monmouth Invitational Handicap on Aug. 5.

Mrs. John Tweedy made public her charges involving the winner of the Kentucky Derby, the Belmont Stakes and the Hollywood Derby, here Monday. She directs the operation of the Meadow Stable for her ailing father, C. T. Chenery in whose silks Riva Ridge runs.

Mrs. Tweedy said that a blood test and an urine sample, taken after the return of Riva Ridge to Saratoga from Monmouth Park at Oceanport, N.J., both showed traces of phenothiazine "or what amounted to a tranquilizer." The tests of the samples were made by Dalare Associates in Philadelphia.

consolate Steve Carlton. And it was two of them that gave Jim Beauchamp "a pretty good birthday."

Carlton, Philadelphia's phenomenal left-hander who had won 15 consecutive games, finally lost his seventh of the baseball season—and his first since May 30—and it took Atlanta 11 innings to do it.

"Sometimes you just get bested," he said after Dusty Baker doubled and Mike Lum singled to give the Braves a 2-1 victory over the Phillies Monday night.

Beauchamp, the New York Mets' reserve first baseman, celebrated his 33rd birthday in high fashion against Houston, clubbing his first two home runs of the year, the latter a two-run shot with two out in the bottom of the ninth inning that propelled the Mets to a 4-2 triumph over the Astros.

Elsewhere in the National League, Cincinnati beat Montreal 4-1, St. Louis shut out Los Angeles 4-0 and San Diego stunned the Chicago Cubs 6-5. Pittsburgh and San Francisco were idle.

On the abbreviated American League slate, Oakland whipped Detroit 5-1, Baltimore clipped California 3-1 and Cleveland bombed Minnesota 10-3.

"You ought to talk to Phil Niekro," Carlton said after the Braves' knuckleballer had outduelled him. "He's the guy who did a hell of a job—a super job."

Niekro gave up nine hits to Carlton's seven with each pitcher striking out 10 batters and walking three. Still, it was the Phillies' 20-game winner who faced the waves of writers.

Carlton insisted at first that "I really hadn't thought that much" about the winning streak. Then he shrugged and acknowledged: "I wish it had continued. It's a shame. I really wish I could have won it for the fans—the record and the streak."

Colts clobber Chiefs

KANSAS CITY (AP) — Kansas City Coach Hank Stram hung his head in humiliation.

"I am disappointed and ashamed," Stram said after his previously undefeated Chiefs had been soundly beaten by the hitherto winless Baltimore Colts, 23-17, in Monday night's only National Football League exhibition game.

"I can't remember when we've played a lousier football game," Stram continued. "Thank God, it's a preseason game."

The Colts clobbered the Chiefs without Johnny Unitas, their 39-year-old quarterback, who received a neck injury on Baltimore's second play from scrimmage and was taken to a hospital. X-rays proved negative but Unitas did not return to action.

The Colts, with Marty Domres at the controls, couldn't do much on offense the first half, but the Baltimore defense, was superb. Safety Rick Volk intercepted a Len Dawson pass in the first period and returned it 29 yards to the Kansas City 9, setting up a 12-yard field goal for Jim O'Brien.

O'Brien shortly thereafter booted another three-pointer from the 38-yard line. With 39 seconds left in the half, Jan Stenerud kicked a 27-yard field goal for the Chiefs.

The Colts struck for 10 points in 47 seconds of the third quarter, getting three on Boris Shlapak's 27-yard field goal, and a touchdown—their first of the season—on linebacker Ray May's 18-yard run with a recovered Wendell Hayes fumble.

A 42-yard pass from Domres to Don McCauley gave Baltimore a first down on the Kansas City four, putting the Colts in position for their last score. On third down, Norm Bulaich swept left end for two yards and the touchdown.

Chargers face tough season

SAN DIEGO (AP) — After a trading blitz by Coach Harland Sware, the San Diego Chargers are the strongest and best balanced they've been in years and loom as a potent challenger for the title in the American Football Conference West.

Yet the schedule they face is foreboding.

On successive weekends in October the Chargers meet Oakland, Baltimore, Miami, Detroit and Kansas City. Then they start November off against the world champion Dallas Cowboys. Other opponents include Cleveland and San Francisco.

But the Chargers of 1972 are not the Chargers of 1971, whose 6-8 record included losses to Pittsburgh, Houston and Denver. Sware has seen to that with his trading.

The 41-year-old coach who served as San Diego's general manager until Sid Gillman resigned last year has made 18 trades since taking the helm.

The Charger offense led the AFC in gaining yardage last year and should be even better this season now that Sware has added the running power of ex-Cowboy Duane Thomas and ex-Cardinal Cid Edwards to the outstanding passing ability of quarterback John Hadl. Thomas, however, has yet to report for work.

And the defense, third worst in the NFL last season, received a complete overhaul by a former linebacker and defensive coach.

Who says freshmen aren't going to be making many varsity first teams this fall?

Two frosh moved up to Texas A&M's first unit Monday as the Aggies started two-a-day drills in pads.

Earnest (Bubba) Bean of Kirbyville was running at right halfback and Richard Osborne of San Antonio Lee held the No. 1 split end position.

NCAA rules permit freshmen on the varsity this year.

Bean got his chance when top-rated sophomore John Bounds of Kermit left the squad for personal problems. Frosh Carl Roaches of Houston Smiley was running as the No.

2 man behind Osborne.

Letterman split receiver Tommy Goodwin of Fort Worth Eastern Hills and defensive back Bill Yocum of Bartlesville, Okla., both seniors, decided to forego their final seasons of competition.

Texas Tech Coach Jim Carlen greeted 100 football candidates Monday as the Red Raiders started drills in 90-degree weather.

"We had two good practices and I was pleased with the enthusiasm and the condition of our players," Carlen said. The Raiders will conduct two-a-days until Aug. 28 when classes start.

Gobes never gets out of the kitchen

MUNICH (AP) — Overworked, underglorified housewives of the world can sympathize with Hans Gobes.

Hans never gets out of the kitchen.

Gobes has a rather large "family," the well-muscled guests from 120 nations who live in Munich's magnificent Olympic village. Matter of fact, he sets a table for 12,000 three times a day.

"Fortunately, I don't have to worry about dishwasher hands," said the young German. "My staff of 971 includes 130 dishwashers."

Gobes was named director of food services for Olympic Village almost two years ahead of the torch-lighting for the 20th Olympic Games in this Bavarian capital.

His shopping for three weeks of meals included:
—42 tons of sirloin steak.
—12 tons of choice filet steaks.

—630,000 soft drinks.
—One million eggs.
—880,000 pounds of fresh fruit.

—850,000 pounds of other meats.

Since refrigerators are jammed with only one day's food supply, an army of a dozen 16-ton trucks rumbles up to Hans back door about 11 o'clock each evening with fresh shipments.

Actually, Gobes 250 cooks look more like kids working their way through college. "My cooks do not need to think—to create—because the meal plans are outlined," he said. "They follow the orders."

Gobes said that "the poorer the country, the tougher the athletes' demands for food." Special tables are set up in the 3,300-seat dining hall for the Asians. Africans sometimes find the American-European dishes hard to digest.

The French team has its own chef strictly to cook steaks. "We cook them medium for everyone else," said Gobes, "but the athletes from France eat them almost uncooked, so rare that the blood runs."

The food bill will be $2 million for the German Organizing Committee and Gobes said he could have used more money. "I spent heavily on meats and cut corners elsewhere," he said. "These athletes are crazy about steak the world over."

Breakfast runs from 5:30 a.m. until noon, lunch starts at 11:30 and goes until 6 p.m. and the dinner hour is stretched from 5:30 until 1 a.m.

American blacks agree on walkout

MUNICH (AP) — The head of Africa's Supreme Council for Sports said today that all black American track athletes have agreed to join Africans in pulling out of the Olympics if Rhodesia competes.

Earlier, Clifford Buck, president of the U.S. Olympic Committee, said he had received assurances from a number of black athletes that they would compete regardless of the outcome of the Rhodesian-African controversy.

The International Olympic Committee continued to wrestle with the question of what to do about Rhodesia, but a decision was expected today. The IOC Executive Board asked Rhodesian officials to appear before it again as it struggled for a solution.

Black African nations stood firm against white-dominated Rhodesia.

Jean-Claude Ganga, general secretary of the sports council, said black American athletes had given him this statement:

"After the declaration of the Supreme Council of Sport in Africa, we the American black athletes of the United States Track and Field Team confirm our position taken on the 18th of August. We have assured Mr. Ganga that we shall stand with our black African brothers."

Ganga said the statement was signed by "the American black track and field athletes" and that "we aren't giving out any names but all the American black athletes signed this statement."

Fischer asked referee Lothar

"They want to treat us like children," Ganga said of the organizers of the Games. "They want us to make compromise after compromise. We have made enough compromises already. But the government of Germany—no compromise; the IOC—no compromise; the organizing committee—no compromise; and Rhodesia—no compromise."

Fischer files protest letter

REYKJAVIK, Iceland (AP) — Bobby Fischer threatened to forfeit the 17th game of the world chess championship today, and perhaps the match, unless something is done about the audience noise in the auditorium, a source close to the American challenger said.

Referee Lothar Schmid said he received a letter of protest from Fischer early today. He declined to disclose the contents, but said it "was not in the rules and would have to be considered very carefully."

Schmid added that the game would be played tonight unless one of the players was ill.

After a drawn game Sunday, Fischer leads the Russian champ 9½ - 6½ and needs only three more points to take the crown. Spassky needs another 5½ to keep it. A win counts a full point, a draw a half.

Fischer asked referee Lothar

Bob Gibson leads Cards to victory

LOS ANGELES (AP) — Bob Gibson scattered seven Los Angeles hits and Bernie Carbo belted his fourth home run of the baseball season Monday night to lead the St. Louis Cardinals to a 4-0 victory over the Dodgers.

Gibson, raising his record to 14-7, struck out six batters and walked two.

Schmid twice on Sunday to transfer play to a private room because of the noise, but Schmid refused.

"You can expect to hear much more about this," a source close to Fischer said Monday. "The noise in there was terrible Sunday."

The auditorium has 2,500 seats, but the Icelandic Chess Federation brought in 10 extra rows of wooden benches Sunday and packed the house with paying customers. Enthusiasts stood in the aisles and lined up at the entrances.

The benches creaked, and the spectators talked aloud and whispered. Adults and children in sneakers streamed in and out. Whenever Fischer left the stage for a break, there was an explosion of coughing.

The referee repeatedly asked for quiet but to no avail.

Detroit loses to Oakland

By HAL BOCK
Associated Press Sports Writer

You are, no doubt, familiar from past pennant races with the infamous "all-important loss column" in the daily baseball standings.

Welcome to 1972 and the all-important win column.

In pennant races past, the best indicator of a team's chances has always been the games lost column. That's because once you've lost a game, you can't recover it. Games that haven't been played yet can always be won, but games you've lost are gone.

That, of course, assumes that all teams play the same number of games. But they won't this year. Because of the player strike last April and the decision not to make up games canceled during the walkout, it is the games won column that becomes important.

In the American League East, for example, Detroit will play 156 games this season, one more than both New York and Boston and two more than Baltimore. That's extra opportunities to win games and ultimately the pennant.

The unimportant loss column is all even among the first three teams today after Detroit lost 5-1 to Oakland Monday night and Baltimore topped California 3-1. That cut the Tigers' lead to one-half game over the Orioles and 1½ over idle New York. The margin is all in the games won column. Detroit has one more victory than Baltimore and three more than New York. Boston, also idle Tuesday, moved within 3½ games of the leaders.

In the only other AL game scheduled Monday, Cleveland whacked Minnesota 10-3.

Oakland's victory moved the A's one-half game ahead of idle Chicago in the West race. In that division too, the unimportant loss column is all even.

Oakland jumped Woodie Fryman for three runs in the first inning with Bert Campaneris' double starting the rally. Angel Mangual and Joe Rudi singled for one run and Mike Epstein doubled two more home. Rudi had four hits in the game, boosting his batting average to .320, tops in the AL.

Boog Powell was the hero for the Orioles, snapping a fifth-inning tie with a two-run homer to back Pat Dobson's three-hit pitching. Vada Pinson homered for the Angels.

Cleveland used the long ball with homers by Jack Brohamer, Buddy Bell, Alex Johnson and Graig Nettles to batter Minnesota.

SECOND PLACE—The Methodist team of the Christian Athletic Association won second place in the softball tournament ending Friday night. Final score was: Catholics 8, Methodist 7. Team members are: front row: Tommy Overton,

An inside look at 'Mr. Olympics'

MUNICH (AP) — The old man sat in the cushioned hotel chair, shoulders still erect and the black tie neatly knotted at the collar of his white shirt. His face showed signs of weariness and despair.

"Twenty years is enough," Avery Brundage said with a heavy sigh. "The world goes on."

These were the final hours of his role as the controversial president of the International Olympic Committee. Within the next few days he will be succeeded by either Count Jean de Beaumont, a thin, dark-haired French nobleman, or Lord Killanin, a jovial, wisecracking Irishman.

Brundage was grabbing a few moments of rest in his fourth states.

Few men have operated in such high circles or had greater influence on the world of international sports.

It is hard to visualize an Olympics without Avery Brundage. Do old IOC presidents, like old soldiers, just fade away?

"Don't worry, I'll keep busy," Brundage said with a floor suite at the Vierjahreszeiten (Four Seasons) Hotel in mid-town Munich.

On the window ledge was a stack of books, the Brundage Memoirs, written in German and Japanese, garnished with pictures showing the IOC president with the late Nikita Krushchev, Franco of Spain and Queen Elizabeth plus princes and potentates of innumerable deep-seated chuckle. "I have many plans. There is, for instance, that project of a permanent Olympic museum in Greece, and . . ."

His eyes and his mind began crossing oceans.

Brundage was asked if there had been any pressure from fellow IOC delegates trying to persuade him to remain on the job.

"Every day," he replied. "Half a dozen or so at a time. Yes, most of all of them have asked me to stay."

Is there a chance?

"I have stated repeatedly in public that I would not serve again," he said. "Privately, it has been the same—I refuse to make the race."

"After all, this is 50 years in the Olympics for me, and I think I deserve a little rest."

Brundage was an all-around athlete in his youth, a competitor in the decathlon and pentathlon in the 1912 games. A construction engineer and contractor, he built a multimillion dollar fortune during the Depression years, later served as president of the U.S. Olympic Committee.

The old warrior wears his age and wounds well. He is 84, will be 85 two weeks after the Munich games end, an age when most men are seeking comfort in a rocking chair.

Although his walk has slowed a bit and his voice occasionally breaks in a lengthy speech, he is vigorous and jaunty. Bald and gray, he has an owlish face, spectacles perched on a bulbous nose, but it is a firm-jawed face that advertises the unshakable militance of his ideals.

As expected, old Avery goes out swinging.

He tolled a death knell for the Winter Games. "May they receive a decent burial at Denver (1976)," he said in his final speech.

"Olympic glory is for amateurs." "The games must not yield to commercialism."

Brundage's principles have been labelled archaic, unrealistic, out of step with modern times. Perhaps, yet one wonders where the Olympic movement might be today if the crochety old man hadn't stood as a bulwark against creeping professionalism.

And what of the Olympics of the future? Can they survive if the IOC rein is taken by a man of lesser will? Can Beaumont or Lord Killanin hold the line—or will they choose to do so?

These are perilous times for the games, ridden with nationalistic pride, jealousies, racial uprisings, protests, boycotts, political intervention.

For all of his naivete in regard to financial aid to the underprivileged athlete—a concession which even the purists must ultimately make to reality—Brundage's stubbornness

Hope man named new agent

Vandivere joined the Extension Service in October, 1965, as assistant county extension agent for Desha County. He also served as assistant agent in Woodruff County and as associate county extension agent in Lafayette County before going to Hempstead County as associate in September 1969. He has been working in the areas of general Extension and farm management programs.

He was reared on a farm and was a 4-H member. He is married to the former Anita Appell of Dallas. They have two children.

Rockefeller can 'live with' Republican party platform

MIAMI BEACH, Fla. (AP) — Former Arkansas Gov. Winthrop Rockefeller said Monday that he could live with the platform of the Republican party, although it contained "quite a few things" with which he did not agree.

Rockefeller, a member of the GOP National Convention Platform Committee, was not enthusiastic about the busing plank of the platform, which says the party would support a constitutional amendment to limit busing if necessary.

Although he said he could support the language of the plank, Rockefeller said he would have opposed any demand for an amendment.

"I have been opposed to the idea of a constitutional amendment all along, but you have to compromise," the former governor said.

Rockefeller said the platform reflected the record of President Nixon.

He appeared disappointed that the platform did not contain language opposing strikes in such essential industries as transportation. Rockefeller said he would have preferred such language, adding that there was no excuse for the recent longshoremen's strike. He said it cost agriculture alone more than $1.1 billion.

But Rockefeller said he did not try to write anti-strike language into the platform because "it doesn't make sense for me to take issues that, one, won't prevail and, two, will have to be resolved in Congress."

He also said he could support the feeling that the platform should try to maintain the neutrality of such labor leaders as George Meany, head of the AFL-CIO, because "we need economic harmony."

He said the platform was very political, adding, "It's supposed to be." He said the primary idea was to "get votes." He said he was confident the platform would.

Rockefeller also said he thought Nixon would become the first Republican presidential candidate to carry Arkansas.

He defended the tightly run convention, with direction from the White House, and said the Democrats did not do much better.

"The Democratic convention was as controlled as any convention ever has been," Rockefeller said.

The flood story: Scenes of misery

TOKYO (AP) — Filipino villagers carrying lighted candles waded waist-deep in swirling flood waters, praying for divine help. In Japan, a one-year-old baby was dug from the mud, chortling and unhurt.

A 12-story luxury apartment house in Hong Kong collapsed under the pounding of thousands of tons of rain-weakened earth. A British attorney, pinned in the debris, calmly directed rescue workers.

In South Korea, U.S. Army and Air Force helicopters and trucks helped save the lives of more than 3,400 people in flooded cities.

Scenes of misery, suffering and bravery were commonplace in much of the Far East this wet summer as torrential rains touched off floods and landslides that destroyed hundreds of thousands of dwellings.

By today the death toll had reached 1,384. Damage mounted into the hundreds of millions of dollars. The poverty or modest circumstances of most of the victims living in low-lying areas or hillside squatter villages kept it from being much higher.

Four areas were hit hardest: the Philippines, with 454 dead; South Korea, 398 dead and 130 missing; Japan, 370 dead, 67 missing; and Hong Kong, 162 dead.

Heavy rains also pounded China, flooding Peking, but no figures were available on casualties or damage.

Monsoons are the prevailing winds in East Asia that bring up to half a year of wet weather. Typhoons are the vast wind and rainstorms that lash the western Pacific during the summer and autumn. Born in the area near Guam, they sometimes reach 150 miles an hour and may cover an area half the size of the United States. There are as many as 35 each year.

This year's rains began taking their toll in mid-June, triggering disastrous landslides in the British colony of Hong Kong, where many of the 5 million inhabitants live on steep hillsides.

The rain totaled more than 60 inches in three days, the heaviest in Hong Kong's history. Landslides buried 78 squatters' huts in Kowloon, on the mainland, the usual aftermath of a heavy rain in Hong Kong.

But this time Victoria Peak, the home of the rich on Hong Kong Island, was also hit. A new building near the top collapsed, setting off a chain-reaction slide of mud and structures in which four buildings were brought down.

Henry Litton, a leading attorney, was found alive in the rubble, one foot pinned by a heavy beam. Chatting calmly with his rescuers, he drank water and ate food while a buzz saw set him free.

Nearly 5,000 other homes had to be evacuated.

For two weeks in July, the rains bore down on Japan.

An irrigation canal overflowed with a roar in the middle of the night, crushing the home of the Matsumoto family and burying one-year-old Kazumi and two of his grandparents. Another grandparent groped in the mud and felt something soft. It was Kazumi, crying as he was pulled free, then laughing.

The Construction Ministry estimated that the rains, which struck Southwest Japan hardest, caused $472 million in property damage.

In the Philippines, a month of rains ravaged 13 provinces on Luzon Island and set back the economy at least two or three years, government economists said.

Damage to crops and property was estimated at more than $450 million while the cost in human suffering was incalculable.

People stranded on rooftops fought for food dropped from U.S. Air Force helicopters. Babies died because they could not eat the high-nutrient buns that were one of the chief relief food items.

Police were given shoot-to-kill orders against looters.

The worst South Korean floods in 47 years left Seoul and other cities awash last weekend and made 300,000 homeless. Nearly 500,000 government workers, high school and college students and militiamen repaired dikes, cleared debris and cleaned clogged sewage systems.

Arrest warrants filed against welfare fathers

CLARENDON, Ark. (AP) — Prosecutor Sam Weems of Des Arc said Monday that he had filed 100 arrest warrants against persons he said were "able-bodied" fathers who are not supporting their children.

Weems, claiming that his action was designed to purge the welfare rolls in Monroe County, said that after the legal action is completed the county residents "can be assured that everyone on welfare belongs there."

"It is probably the only county in the United States that can say that," Weems said.

The prosecutor said the local welfare office had spent several weeks investigating the welfare support of children in the area. He said the report of the county welfare office showed there were 224 "able-bodied" fathers not supporting their children.

But he said only 100 warrants were issued because some fathers could not be located and others were living out of the state.

He said that in some of the cases it would first have to be proven that the defendant actually is the child's legal father. He said that if the paternity cases are won, he would then file suit against the father for nonsupport.

"These mothers would rather have the support of the father than go through the embarrassing experience of going down to the welfare office for a handout — it's a degrading experience," he said.

Tree saved from 'dozer'

DALLAS (AP) — Embattled neighbors have been assured that a stately old pecan tree won't be knocked down to make way for an apartment complex after all.

Demolition of an old house in this city's Oak Lawn section had left only the leafy giant standing on the lot.

On learning a bulldozer was due to uproot the tree, residents of the area locked hands in a human chain around the trunk in its defense.

A spokesman for the Townhouse Homes Corp. which plans to build apartments there said late Monday, however, that "we're going to leave it and build around it."

"I'm glad to hear it," said Darrell Kay, one of the neighbors. His "Ecology is Part of a Christian" sign, tacked to the tree's massive trunk, had sparked the fight to save the Pecan.

"Things have come to a story pass when a man can't do what he wants with his property," groused a bareheaded workman earlier Monday as he glanced across the rubble-filled residential lot to the tree.

"I feel guilty in sticking my nose into other people's business," admitted Ed Frick, a property owner who generated save-our-tree sentiment along the street. "But this is a beautiful city, and I hate like the devil to see it go into a concrete jungle."

Some Oak Lawn inhabitants have voiced fear that their lushly green neighborhood is degenerating into a mostly concrete approach zone for Dallas Love Field to the north.

Trees, like the 100-year-old pecan (Frick's estimate), predate most of the residents and certainly all the apartments.

The 40-foot pecan became the neighborhood rallying point late last week when bulldozers closed in on the 50-year-old bungalow which sat vacant on the lot for much of the past year.

The house was down by Sunday and the tree was due to go next.

But one bulldozer snapped an engine valve trying to push over the giant, and a replacement was deterred by a ring of concerned neighbors, their arms entwined in a defensive circle.

The Nixon years:

Sharp change in war role

BY DONALD SANDERS

WASHINGTON (AP) — Seeking re-election "to complete the work that we have begun," President Nixon will claim he has wound down the war in Vietnam, made historic overtures to Peking and Moscow, brought stability to the economy and been frustrated in other major programs by a Democratic Congress.

The war is assured of a major place in the campaign. Nixon's Democratic opponent, Sen. George S. McGovern, has been one of its most persistent critics for years.

When Nixon announced the start of U.S. troop withdrawals from Vietnam a little over four months after taking office, McGovern termed the move tokenism that "doesn't fundamentally change the character of our involvement." He repeated the charge the week before the GOP National Convention opened.

The Nixon presidency has seen a sharp change in the U.S. role. When he took office, more than 500,000 American servicemen were in Vietnam. Now the total is less than 40,000, although there has been an increase in the number stationed in nearby Thailand and with the 7th Fleet off the coast. Nixon emphasized Vietnamization — turning the fighting over to the South Vietnamese — and through his national security affairs adviser, Dr. Henry A. Kissinger, he engaged in a series of secret peace talks that he later revealed had been unsuccessful.

Since April, U.S. planes have been mounting massive air attacks on the North, and on May 9 Nixon ordered North Vietnamese ports mined to prevent delivery of war supplies.

PRESIDENT NIXON

Astronauts preparing for trip

WASHINGTON (AP) — American astronauts are scheduled to make their last lunar landing in the Apollo series of space flight exploration on Dec. 11, the space agency says.

It will be the sixth moon visit by man and will also represent the longest stay yet on the moon's surface. And it will be the first night launching of a manned spacecraft.

The National Aeronautics and Space Administration said Monday the evening launch hour was scheduled to make possible a lunar landing at the desired sun angle just south of the moon's Taurus mountains and Littrow crater.

Taurus-Littrow, a combination of mountain-dotted highlands and valley-strewn lowlands, was labeled by NASA as a keystone site to fill in major gaps in the developing model of the moon. The site was selected on the basis of Apollo 15 orbital photography and on the recommendation of Apollo 15 astronaut Alfred M. Worden.

Mission commander will be Navy Capt. Eugene A. Cernan, 38, a veteran of 26 1/2 hours in space. His two companions — civilian geologist Dr. Harrison H. (Jack) Schmitt, 37, the lunar module pilot, and Navy Cdr. Ronald E. Evans, 38, command module pilot — will be making their first space flight.

There have been other charges, denied by the administration, that U.S. bombers have deliberately struck dikes and dams.

Nixon campaigned for the White House saying he had a secret plan to end the war. His success or failure in redeeming that pledge is sure to be one of the campaign's main themes.

On the economic front, the Nixon camp also lays claim to progress since Lyndon Johnson left the White House.

A degree of stability has been achieved under the wage-price controls Nixon imposed Aug. 15, 1971, after spurning them for years.

Most recent indicators show that in the second quarter of this year the economy grew at a rate of 8.9 per cent, inflation dropped to an annual rate of 2.1 per cent. Unemployment has edged down to around 5.5 per cent after hanging at 6 per cent for a year or more.

Democrats argue that Nixon moved too late to impose controls, allowing prices to skyrocket and the jobless rolls to swell.

Nixon's imposition of wage-price controls was his second bombshell within a month in the summer of 1971.

He told an astonished nation July 15 that he would go to Peking in early 1972 "to seek the normalization of relations between the two countries."

In a broadcast from Los Angeles, he said arrangements had been made during a secret trip to China by national security adviser Kissinger.

Then on Oct. 12, Nixon announced he would visit the Soviet Union for summit discussions with Russian leaders on all major issues.

Both journeys took place as scheduled with public cordiality despite, in the case of the Moscow trip, the recent U.S. escalation of the air war over North Vietnam.

Accompanied by more than 30 aides, President and Mrs. Nixon left for China last Feb. 17. They received a polite but restrained welcome, but the crowds warmed up later in the visit.

The President held long talks with Chairman Mao Tse-tung and Premier Chou En-lai, and on Feb. 27 he and Chou issued an 1,800-word communique indicating agreement on a need for increased mutual contacts and eventual withdrawal of U.S. troops from Nationalist China's Taiwan.

During his Moscow stay, the President met with party Secretary Leonid I. Brezhnev, Premier Alexei N. Kosygin, President Nikolai V. Podgorny and Foreign Minister Andrei A. Gromyko.

Nixon and Brezhnev signed two arms agreements which for the first time put limitations on strategic weapons. Also signed were other previously agreed upon pacts for cooperation in space, science, health and environment.

Podgorny, Brezhnev and Kosygin also accepted an invitation to visit the United States. Nixon addressed the So-

Smith accepts part-time post teaching at OBU

ARKADELPHIA—George S. Smith, managing editor of the Hope Star, has accepted a position as part-time instructor in journalism at Ouachita Baptist University.

Smith will be assuming some of the teaching duties of William D. Downs Jr., chairman of the OBU journalism department, who will be on a year's leave-of-absence to complete work on his Ph.D. at the University of Missouri.

Smith will be teaching courses in reporting and feature writing for the fall semester, commuting to Arkadelphia from Hope twice a week.

A native of Hope, Smith attended East Texas State University, from which he received a B.S. degree in English and journalism in 1968. Before assuming his present position at the Star, he was employed by the Commerce Journal in Commerce, Texas and by The Baxter Bulletin in Mountain Home.

viet people in a broadcast from Moscow, then paid visits to Leningrad and Kiev.

At home, Nixon generally has maintained a low profile, leaving the sharp language of the political wars to the man who again will be his running mate, Vice President Spiro T. Agnew.

The President held fewer news conferences than his predecessors of recent years.

There were 12 news conferences in 1969, 6 in 1970, 10 in 1971 and 5 in the first eight months of this year. Many were in his office or a briefing room without live coverage.

He has taken a long step toward remodeling the Supreme Court into what he regards as a strict constructionist stance toward the Constitution. But on the way he suffered two serious setbacks.

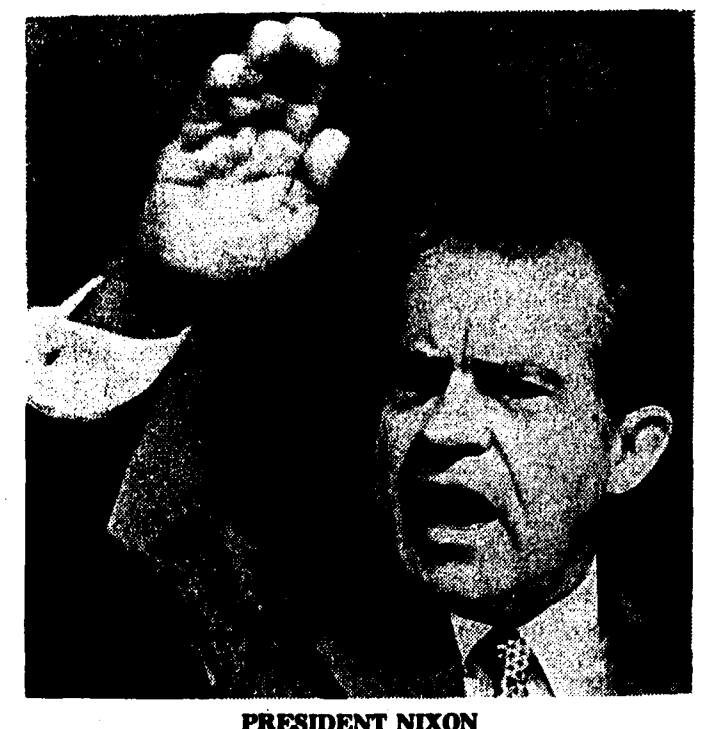

His choice of Warren E. Burger to succeed the retiring Earl Warren as chief justice was quickly confirmed by the Senate, 74 to 3, on June 9, 1969.

The complexion of Nixon's Cabinet has changed markedly. Of the 12 original members, only four remain: Secretaries William P. Rogers, State; Melvin R. Laird, Defense; George Romney, Housing; and John A. Volpe, Transportation.

The Cabinet post of postmaster general has been abolished. Democrat John B. Connally has come and gone as secretary of the Treasury and the remaining jobs have changed hands once.

Some of the former Cabinet members remain in the administration. However, the only sign of rancor in the switches was Nixon's dismissal on Thanksgiving eve in 1970 of Walter J. Hickel as secretary of the Interior.

Boyleing it down

By HAL BOYLE

NEW YORK (AP) — The big payoff in any life is its memories.

They have a lasting value. Unlike money, you can spend them more than once.

A happy memory is indeed above price. Since it proves that you were happy once, it holds out the hope you can know happiness again.

You've had your fair share of memories if you can look back and remember when—

Milton Berle was on the television screen so much that you wondered if your set was stuck in a rut.

You stayed awake almost until dawn on your first Boy Scout overnight hike, fearful that a snake or wild animal would creep or crawl into the tent.

It made you sad the first time you noticed your father's hair was getting gray. All at once he seemed to be smaller and older.

As a child you felt cheated when you went to a big circus, because, no matter how hard you tried, you could never watch the things going on in more than two of the three rings at the same time.

Mothers didn't think it was unsanitary if a kid wanted his dog to sleep on his bed with him.

The biggest satisfaction in getting the measles as a youngster was to poke a pocked face out the window and give a melancholy wave of your arm, like a dying swan, to the hushed, sympathetic circle of young friends below. No stage tragedian never put on a better act.

You hopped aboard a freight train and then, after clinging to the side for five miles, leaped off because running away from home didn't seem so romantic after all.

All old people ever talked about was who had just died, or who was mortally ill and soon would, and you wondered if death really had to happen to you, too, or whether you might become the first person to fool it and go on living forever.

In the 1920s your mother marched into a man's barber shop, and had him snip off her long tresses and give her a short hair bob. That evening Dad took one glance at her and said, "What in the hell is getting into women these days, anyway?" and your mother said, "Oh, shut up, you old stick-in-the-mud. It looks better this way, and it's lots cooler."

A guy was thought to be on the gravy train if he had a job where he worked only 50 hours a week, and had Saturday afternoons as well as Sundays off.

Many a newspaper reader couldn't decide who or what he was against that day until after he had read both Walter Winchell and Westbrook Pegler.

Children were sometimes punished for interrupting their parents.

Those were the days—remember?
